You once told me that one day that I will find true happiness an it will be the happiest day of my life, well grandma if you see this I found the girl of my dreams the girl who took me off my feet. I think you brought her to me I thank you everyday for that. I will never treat her the way your husband did I can promise you that...She means everything to me an i would do anything for her...I love her very much and one day she will be my wife.. And i will tell my kids everything you taught me about love an life... you also still mean the world to me no one can change that... I am sorry i wasn't there for you when i know you needed me in the hospital but i didn't even know, i know i have flaws i try to do my best to show everyone that is in my life that life is to short to be mad at people or treat them bad because you never know when there time is up...And when it is my turn I will be with the people i love when that day comes, and knowing i am going to see you again an be able to hug an kiss you again and just talk to you about everything an anything knowing that you wont ever judge me for what i have done.. I wish i could bring you back an take me instead but we all know that cannot happen..but i will write you everyday to tell you whats going on even though i know you can see it.. I love you and miss you with all of my heart and soul..
